

RANMORE

consulting development coaching modelling targeting e-knowledge

Dr Sally-Ann Burnett

Sally Ann is an independent higher education consultant and Associate of Ranmore. She began her working life in the food and drink industry before moving into higher education in 1995.

Sally-Ann holds a degree and a PhD from University College Cardiff, a DBA in Higher Education Management from the University of Bath and a teaching qualification from Manchester Metropolitan University. She has significant experience as a leader in times of change in higher education.

For example, she recently led a project that established a very successful, brand new university campus in Canada. Prior to that, she held senior positions at Canterbury Christ Church University and the Manchester Metropolitan University in business interfacing roles. Latterly at Canterbury Christ Church she was Director for their new Broadstairs Campus.

As a consultant, she has steered high level projects concerned with maximising the potential that universities offer as catalysts for economic, social and cultural regeneration. Contracts have included facilitating partner collaboration to develop several major learning campus developments in South East England, maximising the leverage on regional government's investments for education led regeneration and ensuring local businesses are fully engaged to strengthen the relationship with colleges, universities and local authorities.

She has particular interests in globalisation, management and leadership, strategic planning and the impact of culture on higher education institutions.